Hospital Accreditation Standards 2005 Accreditation

2005, Partners for Health Reform, USAID. A total of 716 standards in 3 categories: (69) critical standards, (322) core standards, and (325) non-core standards. To become accredited, a hospital must meet all the critical standards and reach a cumulative score of 85 percent on the core standards. The noncore standards constitute a more ambitious target that hospitals are encouraged to work toward; current accreditation requires hospitals to reach a cumulative score of 40 percent on the non ...

Until June 30 th 2005, health facility's accreditation to NHIF has been based on its infrastructural capacity. This approach, however, did not highlight processes and quality improvement in health care delivery. This necessitated revision of the previous accreditation manual, in line with current international practices in accreditation processes.
